Additional Land At Glades Office Building Is Deeded To P. B. County By State

Land which County Commissioner Paul Rardin has sought for many months to provide parking area and additional space for possible expansion of the Glade Office Building, has been made available by the state after many delays.

The land sought by Commissioner Rardin is adjacent to and east of the office building near Belle Glade.

The Internal Improvement Board this week sent the county a deed to the land—a little over six acres which will become a part of the Glades installation.

The board also heard that important road right of way which had been sought by Commissioner Rardin and other Glades officials, had also been made available by the State II Board.

The 100 foot right of way across the Glades State Prison Farm, will be used to build a new access road to the new Glades Sugar House and will help to alleviate traffic at SR-15 and Airport Road.

The sugar cane harvest is soon to get underway and hauling the cane to Glades mills has been a source of concern since the trucking operation is expected to cause exceedingly heavy traffic on present Glades roads.

John Causey, Jr. of Belle Glade was elected president of the Junior Cattleman's Association at the meeting held Monday night in the vocational agriculture building at Pahokee High School. The program consisted of descriptions of different breeds of cattle, both dairy and beef, given by the following members, Mike Youngblood, Larry Miller, Mead Maxwell, Mike McCall, Peggy Bitting, Billy Mac Sheffield, Mike Maxson, John Causey, Jr., and Larry Webb.

Approximately 40 members attended the meeting. They were assisted by John Causey, Sr. of Belle Glade, Associate County Agent; Kent Price, West Palm Beach, Assistant County Agent; W. E. McCall and Bruce Bitting of Canal Point, and Harold Brough of Belle Glade, president of the Cattleman's Association.

County Tax Roll Is Presented Board

According to Florida Statutes, the county commission held a special meeting Monday to approve the 1962 county tax roll presented by Assessor Edgar Maxwell—a roll which totaled $1,168,434.272.

Maxwell said there had been some criticism of methods used for assessment of personal property, but that the system used here was the same as used in other sections of the state and was also the system set out by law and approved by state officials.

The system, the assessor said, resulted in a $10,000,000 increase in the personal property assessment which he said was due to the fact the much property never before on the books, had been added this year.

He also noted that some 14,000 homes in the county pay no tax because of homestead exemption.

The current tax roll is up some $2 million over last year—expected to bring total taxes of $23,555,696.40 with some $12 million of that amount going to the county school system. The general county levy is about half that paid for school taxes, the assessor's report disclosed.

Blue Devils Meet Forest Hill Tonite

Pahokee High Blue devils are set for the third encounter of the season on the grid iron and tonight will bring the scrappy Forest Hill eleven to Lair Field in Pahokee. The kick-off is scheduled for 8:15 p. m.

Last week the locals trounced Clewiston by a tow to one score of 13-7. In their opener they won over Naples in a home game.

Forest Hill and Pahokee both need a victory in this one if either has any aspirations of making a serious bid for the league grid crown.

Pahokee stands 2-0 in the league wins over Riviera Beach and Clewiston providing coach Web Pell's eleven with an actual four way first place tie in the standings. The Devils and Stuart boast perfect 2-0 records, Belle Glade a 1-0 mark, and defending champion Seacrest has a pair of victories and a tie.

Forest Hill finds itself in the same situation of meeting the victory to challenge the rest of the field.

Despite recent news articles, this organization is not in the refining business. Their job is to produce raw sugar and molasses with an anticipated grinding season of six months.

This new sugar factory is owned by 51 Glades people and will create many new jobs for those who are interested. The mill this year will grind some 22,000 acres of sugar cane and will produce approximately 75,000 tons of raw sugar along with 4,500,000 million gallons of molasses.

Communities all over Florida are spending considerable amounts of money in an effort to attract new industries to settle in their areas. Here in the Glades area folks are extremely fortunate in having this new multi-million dollar industry which will for many years to come make its economic influence felt in the community.

October has been designated as "Animal Health Month" throughout the U. S. You'll be reading and hearing quite a bit about the importance of preventive measures that are necessary for the protection of livestock if the nation's huge animal industry is to meet the needs of our rapidly growing population.

When you consider the tremendous toll that various diseases are taking from the nation's herds and flocks, you'll realize the importance of bringing home to our livestock and poultry raisers the dollars-and-cents value of "programmed prevention" through better management and disease controls.

Though the U. S. is probably the safest country in the world today in which to raise livestock and poultry, various diseases still are costing our farmers from 2 Billion to 3 Billion dollars every year. Some of the most severe losses are seldom recognized. They exist in the form of decreased rate of gain and lowered production.

Agricultural economists predict a big shift toward animal agriculture by 1970. Dr. Earl L. Butz, dean of agriculture at Purdue University, described it this way:

"Per capita consumption of livestock products will increase markedly, while per capita consumption of crops, especially cereal grains and starchy foods, will decline. During the past ten years per capita consumption of livestock products increased about 4 per cent.

"By 1970, after cost-reducing technology has been widely adapted in livestock production, per capita consumption will have increased by 10 per cent. When this is combined with the contemplated 20 per cent population increase (no more than 200 million), the effective demand for livestock products will be about 1-3 higher than now. This shift in our eating habits will move substantially toward solution of our chronic feed-grain surplus."

It is estimated the average U. S. farm of 160 to 200 acres suffers an average loss of $1,500 a year due to livestock disease. One economist has remarked that no other industry could tolerate such inefficiency. It's obvious, I think, that agriculture itself can't tolerate that kind of inefficiency, and that's why the number of farms and farmers is shrinking every year. Only the efficient ones are surviving, and their rate of efficiency is being increased every year.

To quote Dean Butz again: "Before 1970 science will have moved into the pig pen, the beef lot and the milk parlor in a big way. We'll be making a pound of lean pork with less than three pounds of feed in contrast to five or six pounds today; a pound of good quality beef with 1-4 less feed than today; and a gallon of milk with much less feed."

After noting only a few of the huge annual losses due to various diseases today—200 million dollars to mastitis, 93 million to leptospirosis, 400 million to loss of baby pigs that die before they are six weeks old—Dr. John B. Herrick, extension veterinarian at Iowa State University points out:

"What is needed is a pre-arranged animal health program based on the modern concepts of disease control, nutrition, management and a business sense. These herd health programs can be pre-designed, using the veterinarian as a consultant, with periodic herd health checks."

"With the aid of such a program, the producer is able to curtail the losses suffered from what he has blamed on disease, when actually the losses were the combined deficits in management, nutrition, genetics and disease control measures collectively."

"The results can be: (1) more profit to the producer. (2) higher quality animal products for the consumer. This type of program is available for livestock producers today in all livestock enterprises."

Animal health specialists have pointed out that, up to now, most of the disease control programs on many farms throughout the country have been aimed at "rescuing the perishing." I suspect that philosophy is all too frequently encountered right here in Florida. Why it should continue to persist is difficult to understand.

Disease control programs, to be effective, must be aimed at prevention instead of just treatment. That's why "programmed prevention" is the keynote for animal health month.

It's interesting to note that Floridians will head up the two most important organizations in the country concerned with health, both animal and human.

Dr. Jack O. Knowles of Miami is president elect of the American Veterinary Medical Association. Dr. Edward N. Annis, also of Miami, is president elect of the American Medical Association.

JUDGE EMERY J. NEWELL

Emery Newell For Juvenile Judge

Emery J. Newell, who was named judge of Palm Beach County's new Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court when it was established several months ago, has announced he will be a candidate to succeed himself in this office, in the November general election.

Judge Newell, a life long resident of this county, and a member of the Democratic Party, is the son of Mrs. Elma Newell and the late Judge Edward G. Newell, who served for many years as judge of Palm Beach County's Criminal Court of Record.

Juvenile Judge Newell, a young attorney who has devoted much of his outside time to youth activities, said this close association with the young people of this area "has given me the knowledge and understanding to render just and fair decisions effecting their future and their welfare."

"These decisions," Judge Newell pledged, "will continue to be determined only after thorough consideration of each case, with the full intent to serve the best interest of the child and the community."

Judge Newell's civic work has been devoted almost entirely to the realm of youth activities. For seven years he coached a Little League baseball team and presently serves as a trustee for the Youth Baseball Association of the Palm Beaches, an organization for which he drafted the charter. A member of Kiwanis, he was chairman of the West Palm Beach Key Club committee for four years and for six years served on State Kiwanis committee for Key Club and for Boys and Girls. He is also active in YMCA and Boy Scout activities.

Mrs. York gave an enlightening talk on the World Federation of Methodist Women. Closely allied to the World Council of Churches, it was formed by Dr. Helen Kim, a graduate of a Korean college and an exchange student at Ohio Wesleyan. There are 52 units in the world, including the five units in the United States. Its motto is "To know Him and to make Him known."

*"Today we need a nation of Minute Men . . . .
citizens who regard the preservation of freedom
as a basic purpose of their daily life . . . ."*

—JOHN FITZGERALD KENNEDY

10 days after his inauguration
as the 35th President of the United States.

Twenty years ago, in the dark, uneasy days before Pearl Harbor, the Minute Man of Concord, timeless symbol of our Nation's determination to defend its freedom, emerged as the emblem of the U. S. Savings Bonds Program. When war came, the Minute Man became the rallying force behind the huge and overwhelmingly successful effort to back our fighting men with War Bonds.

In this, the 20th anniversary year of Savings Bonds, the Minute Man of Concord calls all Americans to an unremitting effort to help preserve our peace and freedom, threatened by forces more powerful and resourceful than those we faced in 1941. Though this effort will take many forms, one way open to all is the continued investment in Shares in America, U. S. Savings Bonds, by "citizens who regard the preservation of freedom as a basic purpose of their daily life."

The resignations of Edward A. Jensen, Luke Dufresne and C. E. Williams as directors, with one-year terms of office still unfilled, were accepted.

Bill Benton, Mitchell Kirk and George Rasheley, unsuccessful candidates for the office of director in the recent election, were appointed to fill the vacancies.

The new officers will be installed during the annual membership banquet to be held in the dining room of the Elks Club, Oct. 30. Fred O. Dickinson, Jr., of West Palm Beach will be principal speaker at the banquet, and W. O. (Bill) Moss will serve as master of ceremonies.

Successful Season Ahead For Florida

TALLAHASSEE — Despite air line strikes, encephalitis and economic doldrums Florida will have a successful winter tourist season, according to the Florida Development Commission.

Chairman - Director Wendell Jarrard says there is no reason for alarm or panic in the tourist promotion agency over prospects for the coming season.

"Overcoming the results of any health problems, transportation strikes, economic changes or weather patterns are a regular part of our job," Jarrard said. "He did not predict a record season, but said early indications point to a successful influx of tourists."

Meanwhile, Fred O. Dickinson asserted Florida is headed for the biggest tourist season in history. Dickinson is chairman of Florida's Council of 100 and has been prominently mentioned as a gubernatorial candidate in 1964.

He said a study by the Council of 100 showed the Panhandle section enjoyed the most profitable summer tourist season in three years. He added that he feels, the Cuban situation notwithstanding, the 1963 season will be the greatest Florida has even seen.

Dickinson's prediction was presented in a speech at the 12th annual installation banquet of the Hialeah-Miami Springs Chamber of Commerce.

HOME FROM HOSPITAL

Rogers Will Speak B. G. PO Dedication

Congressman Paul G. Rogers has accepted an invitation to speak at the dedication ceremonies of the new Belle Glade post office to be held October 21, according to Robert C. "Bob" Lee, chairman of the committee who is spearheading the dedication, sponsored by the local Chamber of Commerce.

However, said Mr. Lee, to accommodate the Congressman, the time has been changed from 2:15 p. m. to 3:30 p. m.

Also attending the ceremony will be C. Banks Gladden, Regional Director of the Post Office Department, of Atlanta, who will represent the Post Office Department.

Letters of invitation to prominent local and county officials are being mailed this week by the committee on invitations headed by Mrs. Rosa A. Nash, local postmaster. The public is invited to attend the ceremony and open house after the program. This will give local citizens an opportunity to see just how their mail is handled from the inside. Employees of the office will assist in guided tours and explain to the patrons anything they might want to know.

Refreshments will be served by the ladies of the community, under the chairmanship of Mrs. I. L. Price.

C. Johnson, presiding. Introduced by C. L. Shirley, Jr., Rev. Hunter gave the high lights of his recent 30-day tour of the Far East, including the Biblical lands.

It was announced that the Rotary conference of District 699 will be held in Boca Raton on October 26, 27 and 28, with the DeLand Club acting as host.

Insecticides Are Worth Their Costs

GAINESVILLE—Dr. Robert H. White-Stevens of American Cyanamid Co., speaking at the Food Additives Conference at the University of Florida recently, declared the benefits of using insecticides far outweigh the risks involved in their occasional misuse.

He expressed concern that Rachel Carson's forthcoming book, "Silent Spring," which strongly criticizes use of insecticides, would cause unnecessary alarm among consumers.

"There is no risk to the consumer from the use of pesticides when they are properly applied," Dr. White-Stevens said.

"Only in instances of rare misuse is there danger. Even then, the misuse has to be of gigantic proportions, since each chemical registered with the control agencies of the federal government has an adequate built-in safety factor determined by experimental research."

Big Tourist Season Is Being Sought

TALLAHASSEE — A $425,000 winter season tourist promotion with several innovations has been approved by the Florida Development Commission.

Louis Benito Advertising of Tampa is the agency hired by the commission for its promotion campaign. Benito, president of the firm, headed the presentation of the new program to members of the commission.

The price tag on the promotional program is the same as last year. According to Wendell Jarrard, chairman of the commission, it is anticipated the state will receive a bonus of another $250,000 worth of free advertising participation from other sources.

Benito noted that, for the first time, the campaign is being waged in several Midwest farm magazines. Still another first is the inclusion of net work television advertising in a contract with the NBC Today program.

Another innovation, according to Benito, is the proposed use of huge posters on buses in four major Northern cities in a "test" program for effectiveness of that type of advertising.

The seventh annual state convention of Alcoholics Anonymous will be held in Jacksonville next spring. Founded in 1935, AA is composed of alcoholics who help each other maintain sobriety and who work with others who need help.
